

Karen M. Myrick, DNP, MS, APRN, FNP-BC, ANP

Dr. Karen Myrick is a Doctor of Nursing Practice, nurse practitioner and educator. Clinically, as an APRN she has practiced in emergency medicine, family and urgent care, and extensively in orthopedics and sports medicine. As an educator, Dr. Myrick has served as the founding director of the Family Nurse Practitioner program at the University of Connecticut, Clinical Associate Professor at the Quinnipiac University School of Medicine, and as faculty for the primary care Nurse Practitioner Program and track coordinator for the Orthopedics and Sports Medicine (nursing) certificate program at the University of St. Joseph. In addition to numerous peer-reviewed publications and presentations, Dr. Myrick has successfully authored and edited two textbooks for nurse practitioners: "Orthopedic and Sports Medicine Case Studies for Nurse Practitioners", and "Advanced Health Assessment and Differential Diagnosis: Essentials for Clinical Practice". Dr. Myrick brings her considerable clinical experience and expertise in medical screening in the orthopedic setting to the University of Hartford Advanced Certificate in Orthopedic Physical Therapy program.