

Fall 2022 Community Book Read

Begin Again: James Baldwin's America and Its Urgent Lessons for Our Own

by: Eddie S. Glaude Jr.

Prof. Bilal Sekou
Hillyer College

Over two virtual sessions facilitated by Prof. Bilal Sekou, we will discuss Baldwin and Glaude's diagnosis of America's race problem and whether there is a path forward through these troubled times. Centered around the exploration of important themes and issues, the fall Community Read is designed to engage the campus community, generate robust discussions, and foster the exchange of diverse ideas and perspectives. These virtual book discussions will take place on Tuesdays, November 1 and 15, 12:45-2 p.m.

The University of Hartford Community Book Read program is open to all UHart faculty, staff, students, and alumni and is presented by the Office of Diversity, Equity, and Community Engagement.

Use the camera app on your smartphone to scan the QR Code to the left to register to join us.

