

UNIVERSITY OF HARTFORD

Fighting for America: Jews, Military Service, and the Reshaping of Religion

MONDAY, APRIL 1, 2024, 4 PM

Jessica Cooperman is Associate Professor and Chair of Religion Studies and Director of Jewish Studies at Muhlenberg College in Allentown, PA. Her research focuses on 20th century American Judaism and Jewish history. Her book, Making Judaism Safe for America: World War I and the Origins of Religious Pluralism, was published by NYU Press and received an honorable mention for the Saul Viener Prize in American Jewish History.

Immediately following the talk, everyone is invited to view the exhibit “Fighting for Hartford: Connecticut Jews on the Homefront and Battlefront during World War II,” now on display at the Museum of Jewish Civilization.

Location: KF Room in Mortensen Library, University of Hartford

Advance registration is required. Please email: mgcjs@hartford.edu